- An initial e.mail reply is free (one).
- For an initial phone consultation, plan to provide your billable name and address as well as the specific nature of the inquiry before a phone appointment will be made.
 - When does payment occur? Most work is done first and then billed for payment within 30 days of completion. However, some work requires the payment of a retainer fee before work can begin. A retainer is charged at my discretion, usually to begin a legal inquiry, not a tax work project.

- Tax work notes: When a tax client sends their information to me, this is recognized as a request to provide the tax related services, and the resulting work will be done and billed: Billing time begins when information is received.
- My tax work rate has not been adjusted for 4 years, is now adjusted up and is about average for this type of work, using either U.S. or Norwegian preparer standards.
- Scope of work: If you have any doubts, please clarify the scope of the work you wish me to do.
- I maintain professional client records which are clear and specific.
- Billing related notes: *(1) The "administrative rate" includes e-mail time. (2) Time used to do billing-related work is not billed to clients. (3) Time is not measured in 6 or 10 minute increments – it is measured by the minute.
